Finding the right Legal Practice Management solution for your law firm.

In recent years, selecting a solution to manage your law practice has become considerably more complex. There are many factors to consider including functionality and platform for your Legal Practice Management (LPM) software.

FRONT-OFFICE VS. BACK-OFFICE

Some LPM solutions focus on front-office functionality: case-management capabilities such as legal calendaring, document assembly and managing the particulars of each case for different types of matters.

Others focus more heavily on back-office functionality: putting more development into time tracking, billing and full-dledged accounting capabilities.

What's more, some include rudimentary document management including the ability to link documents to matters (some do this better than others)

THE CLOUD: HOSTED VS. WEB-BASED

Beyond just the functionality of each application, each application can either be web-based, which typically trades functionality in favor of being accessible in a web browser, or server-based software, which can be run on-premise or hosted in a Private Cloud environment such as Uptime Practice.

With such a crowded and complex marketplace, it can be difficult to know where to even start your search. For that reason we've developed this Hosted Legal Software Comparison chart--to provide a high-level overview of the most popular legal software with links to reviews for each product.
